To Whigs and Republicans.

Remember that every vote cast for JACOB L. DODGE is equivalent to a vote for NATHANIELS. SELAH, the Locol equivalent to a vote the face of the many Hall, who is neither Republican or Whig. Spare the tax-ridden community such a calamity as the who does not desire the election of SELAH ought to cast his vote directly for JOSEPH SOUTHWORTH.

The following Letter from the employers of Mr. Southworth with be read with interest:

Dear Sir: We deem it our day at this time to address you on the position you occupy as the Candidate of Commissioner of Repairs and Supplies. We were not aware until we saw your nace amnounced in the newspapers that you were an aspirant for a political position, and when such fact was an aspirant for a political position, and when such fact was an aspirant for a political position, and when such fact was an

To the American Public.—GREAT NEWS BY THE SAITIC.—Upon the eve of a great publical crisis, when the lowers of liberty are expected to do their duty, let each and every one remember that KIDDER'S CAS REGULATOR has completely revolutionized the burning of gas by reducing the prise of gas within the reach of every purson; and hat 25 to 80 per cent saving is well worth the attention of the lovers of a good thing. It will remain on exhibition until the close of the Fair at the Crystal Palace and at No. 762 Streadway. Call and exemine for yourselves.

Proclamation.

Mayors Orice, New Yerk, Fov. 1, 1826.

The appearance and perade of soldiers upon the evo of an election suit republican France, but not America. The statute of the State forbids it from now until Wednesday acxt, anless called for by authority. No contingercy like the latter is expected by me. But deem it my duty to devise officers and commanders of all companies, that the law forbids "appearance" and "exercise" of their men within the time above mentioned. A heavy penalty is imposed for violation. The law is excellent in splitt. Everything savoring of excitement is to be sarefully avoided during the next five days. My fellow-citisens will remember that last years a target company, on the evening before election, premoted a disturbance in matching by a political assimblings. It will become the duty of all policement to notify me of any parade between this date and the day su oceding election, that I may take measures to enforce the law. If engagements for parade have been made in ignorance of the law, commandants with immediately postpone them.

THE OLD HOMESTEAD.

By Mrs. ANS S. STEPHERS.

It one volume, 12mo. Price $1.25.

There are some human soule serenely bright,
Born like last cherubin, so close to heaven. That all their lives are radiant with its light,

The "OLD HOMESTEAD" is a book of extraordinary talenz, and from every quarter it receives the most gratifying approbation. Not one critical opinion has yet appeared against it. Its rural pictures are delightful; its home scenes beautiful; its portrayal of character felicitous; its local descriptions ful of startling truth; its pathor sends sudden gushes of tears to the yes; its interest is profound; its humor delightful; its incidents, descriptions, scenes, plot, dramatic grouping and character, al evince the master hand. From The N. Y. Evangellet

"In our judgment this a far superior performance to Fashion and Famine. It discovers more shill and care in the evolution of the plot, and a much more finished and unexceptionable character in its little heroine. Its aim is unquestionably a good one; and we must appland the fidelity and humanity of those incidental exposures of evil in our municipal affairs, which Mrs-Stephens so successfully introduces in her work. It has great interest as a story, and leaves a wholesome impression especlaily in the touching sympathy it elicits for its little orphaned heroine." From The Boston Traveller.

"We have read it with delight. He tone is religiou, throughout."

From The Christian Secretary.

"The Old Homestead is situated among the Catakill Monn-tairs. To this point the talents of the writer have been partice larly directed, and the incidents and characters which she has pletured are worthy the genius of a Cooper or a Scott. Uncle Nathan is destined to become as favorite a character in connection with the Old Homestead as " Leather Stocking" has already become in the romances of Cooper."

CRAMMAR for the MILLION.—TOWER'S in the Public Grammar Schools of Boston and New York Cides. The favor with which this little work has been received by the public, and the success with which it has been used in Schools, have been remarkable. Its design is to lessen the difficulties which the young scholar lovariably experiences on his first in duction into the study of Grammar. It begins at the lowest round of his understanding and leads him upward in an agreeable and attractive manner until he is able to pu sace a more comprehensive plan of festimetion. It teaches "one thing at a time," and is in this manner enabled to teach many timing in siecession. To teachers it will be of great convenience and utility, and to scholars it will afford an unusual facility to maxering the difficult philosophy of our larguage; it is always a fivorite in the class room.

"Our schools suffer no imposition so agregious as in the cumbros grammatical text-books in com mon use. Tany so, we no earthly purpose except to overtask the weight memory, and to obscure the nental preception of the pupil. The Grammar now be fore us is an honorable exception. Its definitions are as simpless carefully analyzed. Its rules of syntax are few, concise and comprehensive. It contains no irrelevant matter, and could be studied with interest and prufit by an intelligent pupil of seven or eight years of age."

This has been pronounced a "Book that will speak for itself whenever a teacter has the true interest of his pupils at heart."
It takes hitherto unoccupied ground, and consists mostly of Exercises in Grammatical forms, being a pactual application of the principles of Grammar on a new plan, to establish the habit of witting correctly. After this shabit is fixed, the next important step in Composition is Arrangement. This is taught in a manner entirely new, giving but one process at a time, so almpilifying the work as to tender essential ad to the teacher in impatting a correct and systematic method of chinking and writing

MRS. CHILD'S NEW BOOK

This day published:

PROGRESS OF RELIGIOUS IDEAS THROUGH SUCCESSIVE AGES. By L Maria Child, an hor of "Philothea,"

Letters from New York," &c. 3 vols., 12mo. $4

This work has cost the distinguished author mway years of labor and study. It will be found a conclee and somprehensive account of religious opinions, from the most accient Hindoo records to the complete establishment of Christianity. In her preface she remaks:

"My motive in writing has been a very simple one: I wished to show that theology is not religion, with the hope that I might help to break down partition wals; to ameliorate what the elouent Bushed! calls' baptrized batteds of the unan race."

To write with the urbissed justice at which I aimed, I was obliged to trample under my feet the theolocical underbrush which always tangles and observate the path when the soul stilves to be guided only by the mild, bright star of religious evaluation. It is never pleasant to wak directly through and over the opinions of the age in which one lives. I have not done it sarcastically, as if I deplese them; because such is not my feeling. I have done it in a straightforward, quiet way, as if I were unconscious of their existence. "The perfect openness with which I have reves ed many particulars spacerally the pin the back sround will trouble some devotional peap of whose feelings I would not will logly wound. But I place great reince on sincerity, and have strong faith in the power of gennine Christianity to stand on its own internal merits, unadded by cor crain ent.

GRADUAL EXERCISES IN WRITING THE ENGLISH

LANGUAGE.

This new work on a new subject has been pronounced. A book that will speak for itself whenever a teacher has the tune interest of his pupils at heart." Its plan is en nively original, and the volume embodies the fruits of many years experience in teaching it consists of gradual exercises in witting god Erglish, by which the pupil is led onward step by step, in not only an instructive but attractive manner. It does away with the too prevalent custom in schools of requiring scholars to commit to memory a great number of grammatical rules, and teaches the grammar of the language not so much by theory we by practice. Its ruccess in the multitude of instances where it has been adopted in the schoolroum is almost unprecedented.
It is a favorite both with the scholar and teacher, for it lightens the takes frach. It not only has no equal among extheaks in premoting the object at which it sime, but it has been prepared as no other book before it, and occupies a distint granual by itsself. Its introduction into general use marks a new era in the eif. Its introduction into general use marks a new mode of teaching. From The Christian Register.

"In the book before us Mr. Tower has brought the study and experience of a quarter of a century to best apon this difficulty, and we think those who use the book will not be disapported by precised application, and forms the habit of writing correctly."

From The Puritan Recorder.

Exercises are here given in all the grammatical forms that the learner may by practice acquires the habit of writing correctly. After he has attained accuracy of expression he is modured to a systematic arrangement in composition, which by taking up only one thing at a time, will impart order and accuracy in his mides of thought."

From The New York Observer.

"The plan and execution of this little book are admirable. It is designed for the years just of the latter has a time which art of 'writing compositions,' and does not deal in rules—which are related to the secretary of the plan and execution of this little book are admirable. It is designed for the years just to bureen the memory with a useless weight—but begins at once with entertaining examp can and exercises. There is a better way of learning than 'by best'—it is learning by practice; and this is the mode of teaching which the experienced anyhors of this volume propose. We give no new book a warmer welcome than one which is fitted for the use of children, and designed to lessen their early difficulties in the way of acquiring knowledge. Going to school' is often an interest the control of the latter of the latter of this learners is wortey of a word of commendation. This is a well same land well-executed book and we doubt not will be highly useful in the sphere for which it is adapted.
